More ready than not, the new MLA website is about to go live. It should be up before this issue of Focus goes to print. We’ve left a bit of room for perfection, so take a look and make suggestions. Thanks to all on the MLA Council who contributed, and to those who haven’t contributed yet, the opportunity still stands. Thanks most of all to Stacy Bruhn, our fearless website leader.

We floated and gloated at Chico for the ASLD/PLD Retreat October 12-13. The rewards were great for those of us who made the perhaps crazy decision to drive through the first snowstorm of the season to get there. Thanks to the presenters for sharing their expertise and a special thanks to Beth Boyson, Liz Babbitt and Anita Scheetz for planning and executing a successful retreat.

Our Fall MLA board meeting was held immediately following the retreat at the Livingston-Park County Public Library. Much discussion ensued on a variety of topics and a Member Reimbursement Committee was created. Liz Babbitt, as chair, Anita Scheetz, Lisa Mecklenberg Jackson and Kathy Mora will be reviewing and making recommendations to the board for possible revisions and additions to current policy. Member input is welcome, as always.

I have had several questions about the new MLA license plates. Lisa Mecklenberg Jackson and Debbi Kramer have done all they can do and it is now up to those at the state level. We’ll keep you posted. When the time comes, be ready to share license plate availability with co-workers, neighbors, and friends. The more cars with MLA plates, the more visible libraries become, and the more money we will have for the association to promote our libraries in our mission to serve the needs of Montanans.

On November 7, I had the opportunity to meet with Lynn Kelly, Kim Crowley, Janel and Mark Trowbridge of T&T Conference Management, and the hotel management at the Hilton Garden Inn in Kalispell to make decisions about our upcoming April conference. My respect for conference co-chairs and MLA board members has grown almost daily since July 1. Our annual conference is a BIG DEAL. We are doing a few things differently for the “Creating New Paths” conference this year, so you can expect the same quality content and camaraderie with a little innovation for good measure. Set aside April 22-25 now, for it will be a conference you won’t want to miss. Watch for an interest survey on Wired-Mt in December with a preview of some of the great program offerings. Please complete and submit the survey to help us plan a fun, enlightening, and inspirational conference; and be ready to partake in early registration on the conference website T&T will be setting up for us in January.

Library Legislative Day, Wednesday, January 14, 2009, is another very important day to note on your library calendars. Sponsored by MLA and others, the day notably culminates in one of the best receptions on the hill. Join me as an enthusiastic newbie, or return as a seasoned veteran. We encourage you to meet and greet your legislators and impress them with all we do and all we will be able to do in the future with the proposed legislation.

Last, but not least, is Offline 2009, “Open Source: The Revolution is... Here?” Another great retreat, another soothing hot tub, another beautiful library setting, but most importantly, more education, innovation and inspiration for the work we do. The staff of the Hearst Free Library will be our host and Fairmont Hot Springs will be the place for rest and relaxation. Watch for more information in Focus, and on Wired-Mt and our new MLA website.

Trust yourself, support your friends, family and co-workers, work for your patrons, local and global . . . and when you finish with that . . . ‘tis the season to gear up and slow down, give and receive... a little yin... a little yang... and a wonderful wabi sabi season to all.

Fort Peck Tribal Library Receives Libri Grant

By
Anita Scheetz
Fort Peck Tribal Library
ascheetz@fpcc.edu

Fort Peck Tribal Library in Poplar received the Libri Foundation’s Books for Children grant. This grant gave the Library 57 new children’s books for babies through high school. The total value of the grant was more than $900. A display of the new books is set up near the library desk for all to browse. The display has been well received by local children and many titles are out in the community being enjoyed.

“The Libri Foundation is a nationwide non-profit organization which donates new, quality, hardcover children’s books to small, rural public libraries in the United States through its BOOKS FOR CHILDREN program. The Libri Foundation was established in 1989 for the sole purpose of helping rural libraries acquire new, quality, hardcover children’s books they could not otherwise afford to buy. Since October 1990, the Foundation has donated over $3,500,000 worth of new children’s books to more than 2,600 libraries in 49 states, including Alaska and Hawaii.” (from the Libri Foundation website)

Drumlummon Views

By
Bruce Newell
MLN Director, (retired)
bnewell@mt.net

Who is publishing today’s Montana literary story? Most Montana libraries have Kitteredge and Smith’s The Last Best Place, 1,158 pages thick-as-a-brick and the definitive record of Montana’s best literature from days gone by. But what of Montana’s thriving contemporary literary activity?

Before I tell you about a wonderful Montana literary e-journal, let me share a little Helena-area history with you. Sue and I live up the hill from Cruse Avenue. Cruse Avenue is part of an aborted early-nineteen-seventies attempt to construct a ring road around Helena. Now instead of precious metals, Drumlummon is the moniker of a wonderful Montana-based electronic literary publication called Drumlummon Views. This online publication contains original essays, poetry, and reviews of topics seen zooming along Montana’s rich cultural highway.

Some of Montana’s current story is being published electronically, and your users will enjoy finding a link to Drumlummon Views in your online catalog and in your library’s WorldCat holdings. The Mansfield Library at U of M cataloged DV, making it easy to add your library’s holdings to WorldCat. Don Cornish from Lewis & Clark Library has added LCL’s holdings to WorldCat and has linked to DV from LCL’s OPAC. In this way he has provided a link to some of today’s online Montana cultural riches, facilitating easy discovery in the context of LCL’s library’s catalog.

Come to think of it, there are many local online publications or Web sites that could get added to our catalogs and shared digital repositories—maybe even this one.

Local Legislators Support Public Libraries
And Will Take Picture to Prove It

The State Library and the MLA PR & Marketing Committee are collaborating to offer Montana libraries a very special opportunity—a personalized READ poster of your local legislator who supports Montana libraries! Legislators will be posing for the posters at the Legislative Day event January 14, 2009 and the personalized posters will be offered to libraries free of charge. If you have a legislator’s ear, encourage them to sit for a photo so you can display them, and their READ poster, in your library. For questions, contact Lisa Mecklenberg Jackson, PR & Marketing Committee Chair, at ljackson@mt.gov or Jim Kammerer, State Library, at jkammerer@mt.gov

As announced in the last Focus issue, the Montana Library Certification Program will undergo an update during 2009. The goals for the update are to promote continuing education and its impact for quality library services, bring the Montana program into line with more recent competencies and certification programs, improve recognition for participating librarians, provide a more relevant track for public library directors, and develop a voluntary track for trustees. The updated certification program will be launched in January 2010.

To help with the update process, Montana State Library (MSL) asked for volunteers to serve on a focus group. Thank you to everyone who volunteered. It was difficult to select just 10 members, but the new focus group has tremendous expertise and represents all types of libraries from all parts of the state. The focus group will include Liz Babbitt (appointed by MLA), Honore Bray (Missoula), Mary Ann George (Helena), Cherie Heser (Forsyth), Holly Harper (Whitehall), Anne Kish (Dillon), Alice Meister (Bozeman), Kathy Mora (Great Falls), Jean Nielsen (Miles City), Sami Pierson (Libby), Anita Scheetz (Poplar). The focus group is scheduled to meet on February 3, 2009 to begin working on the update. MSL will keep everyone informed on the process, progress, and outcome of the update through wired-mt and the MSL website. Once a draft certification program is available, all MT librarians and trustees will have an opportunity to comment on the changes, make suggestions on strengthening the usefulness of the program, and describe the impact changes might have on the library community.

2008 Collection Management Honor Roll

Each year the Montana State Library Commission honors libraries of all types that are dedicated to sharing resources. To be eligible for the 2008 Collection Management Honor Roll, libraries must submit a current collection management policy to the State Library for approval by December 31, 2008. Other Honor Roll requirements are that a library have at least 50% of holdings on WorldCat and be actively adding and deleting holdings information to the database.

Gates PAC-HUG Project Deadline

The Gates Foundation’s Public Access Computing Hardware Upgrade Grant Project (2006-2008) is in its final months. There are still 25 public libraries (including branches) with grant funds to use by the December 31, 2008 deadline. If you have PAC-HUG funds left, please spend it now for appropriate project expenses. If you are uncertain of the status of your library’s grant, please contact Sue Jackson.

Add a Librarian

Montana public, public school (K-12), and tribal libraries can apply for a $35,000 grant to bring a new professional librarian on staff for two years. These PEEL stipends are designed to demonstrate to users and funders how much more can be offered to the community with increased staff at the library. Four stipends are available. Recipients of the stipend must match the stipend and make every effort to continue the position following the grant period. For application details, go to: msl.mt.gov/greatcareer/stipend.htm Deadline for applying is December 31, 2008. Stipend awards will be made by March 2009. The PEEL project is funded by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS).

My Personal Experience With a PEEL Scholar

By Heidi Sue Adams,
KRMC - Medical Library
hadams@krmc.org

While I know several recipients of the PEEL scholarship program, and have been excited for all the scholarship winners in Montana, I never had first-hand experience of the PEEL program. Until now...

Our library does not qualify as a PEEL site since we’re considered a special library. However, a student approached me with an idea of making our library a Directed Field Work site. Once objectives have been established, the student works in your library for approximately ten weeks, under your guidance, learning about what makes your library run. Including activities in Circulation, Cataloging, Serials Management, Interlibrary Loans, Web Pages, Reference and Literature Searching. Whatever your objectives may be that are mutually beneficial to you, your library, and the student.

Sheree West, a current PEEL scholar due to finish school in the spring, completed her Directed Field Work experience in the Medical Library at Kalispell Regional Medical Center. I have to admit, although this is my first Directed Field Work experience, it was a highly successful experience and I'm ready to accept another student. She was able to keep me abreast of new knowledge from library school, and I was able to let her experience "real world librarianship." I'm already happily updating our processes in the library because "that's the way we've always done it" just doesn't cut it as a legitimate excuse anymore.

Sheree was already informed of the "whys" of librarianship. For instance, she already knew the reasons for cataloging, and how to catalog basic materials, she just needed to learn how to manipulate WorkFlows to complete the cataloging process. Sheree also gained experience in interlibrary loans using the DOCLINE system, health-related literature searching, web page programming, and more. I'm delighted that the Information School allows these Directed Field Work experiences, because now I can truly see first hand the level of readiness these students have when applying for jobs in Montana libraries.

HeritageQuest Online

Launched for Public Libraries Across State

48 out of 80 public libraries contributed local funding under a shared cost formula to purchase a year’s subscription to HeritageQuest Online for all Montana public libraries. LSTA money from the State Library was added to cover the final total cost. ProQuest has offered several training webinars and library staff participation has been high. Many thanks to Missoula Public Library’s Honore Bray and staff for managing the purchase of this license, collecting the dollars and getting the subscription paid: not a small chore. Huge thanks to all of the public libraries, large, medium and small who contributed local funds so that all public libraries could make use of the popular resource.

The State Library and the Base Map Service Center recently announced the public debut of the Montana GIS Portal at gisportal.mt.gov. The Portal is a searchable repository of metadata records about GIS data sets, designed to be Montana’s primary site for users to find GIS data and for data providers to publicize the existence of their data.

The initial release of the Portal contains a collection of about 400 layers (with 200 sample maps) provided by Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks, the State Library, the Base Map Service Center, and the Flathead County GIS Department. The State Library will conduct extensive outreach to obtain records from other agencies and conduct training for publishers to complete their metadata and make it work with the Portal.

The Portal has a section where the GIS community may put links to data and information they believe are important for people to be able to find quickly. This isn’t Web 2.0-enabled yet, so you need to contact us if you want to add a section to this area of the Portal or contribute content to one of the existing sections. Each link in the community section leads to a page that has a brief summary of its topic, a link to the main agency or GIS coordination web site concerned with the topic, and a list of links to metadata records in the Portal for obtaining data pertinent to the topic.

The GIS Portal has an on-line Map Viewer that provides a basic map of Montana. You may load any web map service and use the viewer as a “poor person’s GIS” to visually overlay data from different sources. If you find data with the GIS Portal that is part of a web service, the Portal will provide a button that automatically adds the service to the Map Viewer.

When you find data with the Portal, it provides a very brief description of each record, a link to the full metadata for each record, and a link for downloading the data, if the publisher provided an on-line linkage to the data.

We strongly encourage all GIS data producers to contact us if you want your data to appear on the Portal. We will eventually contact you to talk about doing this, but more data will get on the Portal faster if we start with the people who are most interested. You can start learning about publishing to the Portal by looking at the instruction documents under “Publishing Help” on the Portal home page.

The Portal is still in its infancy, and we need your feedback on how to make it better. Please try it out and let us know what you think. Our immediate plans are to add more content to the Data Categories section, add aerial photos to the Map Viewer’s base map, and make a better list of services to choose from in the Map Viewer’s “Add Services” tool.

Our longer-term plans for the next couple of years will be to use the Portal and its Map Viewer as a vehicle to replace the State Library’s Topofinder, Digital Atlas, Data Bundler, and GIS Data List applications. The Map Viewer will have a look and feel similar to the Montana Natural Heritage Program’s Tracker application nris.mt.gov/tracker, but it will have the Topofinder’s data table with copy-and-pasteable location data for the map center cross-hair.

The Map Viewer will have functionality to search or browse for all map service layers known to the Portal and add them to the map, and to add other map services that you know about. We will make a big effort to make a lot more of the Portal’s data layers available as map services. Eventually you will be able to select features from the map, select or clip other layers using those features, and view reports or download GIS data based on the results. These functions will probably also still be available through the old Digital Atlas and Data Bundler front-ends, but there will be an entirely new server engine behind them.

The current appearance and functionality of the Portal are the result of work by the GIS Portal Team. This includes State Library staff Jeff Dobb, Tom Marino, Gerry Daumiller, Duane Lund, Diane Papineau, and Steve Jeffery, and Base Map Service Center staff Erin Geraghty and Michael Fashoway. The Portal is governed by a Steering Committee, that includes Jennie Stapp (State Library), Stu Kirkpatrick (Base Map Service Center), Art Pembroke (Lewis and Clark County), Lance Clampitt (U.S. Geological Survey), and Ken Wall (GeoData Services). Please contact any of these individuals if you have questions or comments about the Portal.

Missoula Public Library Joins World Community Grid
By
Joyce Doyle
Missoula Public Library
jdoyle@missoula.lib.mt.us

It’s not often a library computer sits unused. But when it does, that time is being put to good use. Missoula Public Library recently joined the World Community Grid, a cooperative project dedicating computer “down time” to running computations for research into projects like discovering cancer treatments, fighting AIDS, and determining a formula to help impoverished countries grow rice.

The secure program joins thousands of individual computers to equal a supercomputer, cutting research time from decades to months. Whenever a computer is not in active use, it is assigned a portion of the supercomputer’s computations. For more on the World Community Grid, visit www.worldcommunitygrid.org

Missoula Public Library Expands Senior Outreach

Missoula Public Library is reaching out to seniors. Our Reach Out!
Project allows seniors who can’t travel to the library to still use our services. Librarians and volunteers visit senior residences once every three weeks, bringing with them containers loaded with library materials and circulating an average of 140 books, movies, and CDs each month. Now the library is expanding Reach Out!, which was initiated with support from the Friends of the Library in 1998, to add six new residence homes, bringing our total to 11 homes throughout Missoula. This expansion has been a goal of our Board of Trustees for several years.

In addition to adding to the number of senior homes we visit, we’ve also expanded the services we offer there. We now have the ability to check out materials and create library cards on-site, so seniors have full service at their homes.

This is Mark’s 10th appearance at Offline. His first New Technology for Libraries presentation was at the Bozeman Public Library in 1999. To simply say thank you to Mark for 10 great years should be enough to get you to Anaconda! But that’s not enough for Mark. He wants to continue to enlighten and entertain. So Mark will return to the topic of what’s new and relevant to libraries and librarians in the technology arena. In addition to commenting and quipping about 2009’s early crop of gizmos and gadgets, he will muse a little about the cutting edge itself, the territory where some of us feel so comfortable...and others just feel like screaming.

What’s New in Open Source: Operating Systems, Hardware, Applications, Installations
Matt Beckstrom - Lewis and Clark Library, Helena

Matt presented a session at last year’s Offline on fun new Open Source applications. Some of us think this presentation may have been the source of inspiration for this year’s Offline theme. This year Matt will take it a couple of steps further. He will give us an update on new and useful Open Source applications as well as hardware. He even promises to show us all how easy it is to install Suse Linux at our libraries.

On The Back of Open Source: Web 2.0 for Libraries and Beyond
Stef Johnson, Butte Silver Bow Public Library, Michelle Fenger, Ronan City Library, Ben Miller, Missoula Public Library

Ben, Michelle and Stef will present a fun presentation on the new world of Web 2.0 applications. Michelle and Stef are current library school students and Ben is a front-line public library geek. They are all using Web 2.0 applications in their everyday work life, and they’re promoting their use to the public. Ben had this to say about his part of the presentation “I would love to do something in the way of “cloud” computing. You know, using Google docs, online backups, etc., using a web browser as your (almost) only application on your computer.”

Something Open Source This Way Comes
Lee Phillips & Stef Johnson, Butte Silver Bow Public Library

In September of 2008, Butte Silver Bow Public Library became the first public library in the state of Montana to launch an Open Source ILS. Lee Phillips and Stef Johnson will tell us all about the selection, installation, conversion, and deployment of Koha 3.0 Lee will talk about the Open Source ILS landscape and what’s involved in choosing a vendor and dealing with support for Open Source, rather than legacy systems.
Handling Digital Images in Your Library: The User Experience
Jim Semmelroth, Missoula Public Library

Are tourists still bugging you to upload those photos of Mt. Baldy from their flash drive, or direct from their camera? You still don’t know how to handle them? Jim’s session can help. It will focus primarily on Windows XP and Vista, rather than Open Source operating systems and applications, but Jim will look at some freeware products.

Public Library Homepage Hosting Service Launch
Tracy Cook, Montana State Library

The State Library wants every public library to have a web presence. But they have realized that not all of them have the resources, skills, or time to accomplish this. The State Library may have the solution. Tracy Cook will use Offline to unveil a new webpage hosting service for public libraries in the state. This is going to be truly exciting for the small libraries that have no place on the Web to call home.

MHS Conference Brings Collaboration & Ideas To Southeastern Montana

By

Celebrating Counties and Communities in southeastern Montana was the theme of a Regional Conference which brought four members of the Montana Historical Society in Helena and several representatives of counties in Custer Country together in Forsyth November 7 and 8.

The conference was held at Rosebud County Library, where participants were treated to seven workshops giving instruction in developing local history, conducting oral history interviews, preserving local history, and funding special projects along with preservation.

Archivists Rich Aarstad and Jeff Malcomson, who originated the outreach conferences for each of the tourism districts in the state, were joined by fellow historical specialists Martha Kohl and Roxanne Lincoln, as well as Custer County Art Center Director Mark Browning, who began the conference with an excellent presentation on the role of art and photography in preserving the history of southeastern Montana.

Participants were also treated to performances by local Quigley Shoot founder Al Lee, 1800’s Musicologist Rick Strohmyer, and the Miles City Caledonian dancers with bagpiper Scott Glascock, all of whom added historic observations, items, and demonstrations for both information and entertainment.

The conference was “beefed up” by Rosebud Cattlewomen, who served excellent lunches both days, and refreshments for registration time and breaks were supplied by the Custer Country Board.

Ideas and plans were shared for celebrations and collaborations throughout southeastern Montana, both from counties like Big Horn and Musselshell, which will soon celebrate centennials, and also from counties like Rosebud and Custer, which have celebrated centennials but still have many needs as far as gathering and sharing county and community history with residents and tourists are concerned.

The conference planning committee, including Jean Nielsen of Miles City Public Library, Cheryl Heser of Rosebud County Library, and Bruce Wendt of Billings West High School and the Western Heritage Center, commented that they were disappointed at a lower-than-expected turnout but very pleased with the reactions and contributions of all who attended.

In his keynote speech, Rich Aarstad noted that the Montana Historical Society has always tried to serve the state as consultants for historic preservation and presentation, but their realization that in order to be “your historical society”, they needed to go out and offer their workshops and expertise directly to different groups of Montanans has inspired a whole new direction to the society.

Southeastern Montana’s conference in Forsyth was the “kick-off” for the conferences, all of which will be completed by next July 1, and attendees all supported the idea of follow-up meetings to continue the collaboration and education which were the highlights of this conference.

The Great Falls Public Library is co-sponsoring Read to an Orphan with the Great Falls Animal Shelter. Once a month, a Great Falls Police officer comes to the library for a special story time. Accompanying him is a doggy orphan from the shelter who is family-friendly and a prime adoption candidate. The hope is that someone attending story hour will connect with the dog and adopt him.

Plaza Renovations Underway

Workman broke ground on the renovation of the Great Falls Public Library Plaza in mid-October, signaling the fruition of a long process of grant writing, fundraising and form filling. The inception of this project began over two years ago with the submission of a CTEP grant, work with architects and Bozeman artist Zak Zukovi. Final details of the renovation, landscaping for example, will be completed in the spring.

Darby Community Public Library Receives PNBA Donations

The Darby Community Public Library is proud to announce that we were selected to receive $30,000 worth of new books from the vendors at the 2008 Pacific Northwest Booksellers Association (PNBA) fall trade show. Vendors were encouraged to donate the books from their display tables to the PNBA Rural Library Program. Through a casual conversation between one of our volunteers and staff at Chapter One Book Store in Hamilton, Chapter One very graciously nominated our library to be the recipient of this program.

Our responsibility was to go to Portland, pack the books and transport them back to the library. Lowell Baltz (trustee extraordinaire) and Ron Fannin (husband extraordinaire) drove a rented truck to Portland, OR. The local Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) put us in touch with the Portland RSVP office and they sent volunteers to help pack the boxes and the truck.

Now we have boxes and boxes of newly published books and are gearing up our staff to process these and get them out on the shelves.

Our library is fairly new, built in 2004, and our collection is limited. However, through the generosity of PNBA, we now have a great selection of new books to offer the community.

A trick and treaty good time was had by all at a Halloween Story Hour at Wedsworth Memorial Library in Cascade during October. The children wore splendid costumes and even the Story Lady was dressed for the occasion as a pirate. We enjoyed spooky tales, had a parade through neighboring businesses, made ghostly sock puppets, and completed the event by enjoying spider cupcakes and juice. What fun!

Biz Kid$ at the Belgrade Community Library

The Belgrade Library hosted a successful five week Biz Kid$ after school program. Kids in grades 4 - 8 met once a week to watch clever skits about money management, eat pizza donated by Pizza Hut, and participate in hands-on activities to learn ways to make and manage money. Junior Achievement of Southwest Montana provided the program and trained a volunteer instructor. Nineteen young entrepreneurs received certificates of completion from the Biz Kid$ program. The library plans to host another series in the spring.

From the creators of the Emmy award-winning series Bill Nye the Science Guy, the Biz Kid$ program teaches kids about money and business. It can be seen Saturday mornings on Montana Public Television. Only 10% of America's high school graduates have any training in money management and personal finance, so this program fills a need.
